FUNERAL CEREMONIES OVER THE BODIES OF EMERSON AND GENERAL BURLBUT.

The Miscreants who Attempted the Assassination of Field and Vanderbilt to be Tortured if Boston Gets Gen Fitz Thom.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.

CONCORD, Mass., April 30.—The last rites over the remains of Ralph Waldo Emerson took place to-day afternoon. A special train from Boston brought many people, and almost every building in town bore some token of sorrow; public buildings being heavily draped. Services at the house were conducted by Rev. W. H. Furness, of Philadelphia, and were of a simple character. The aged mother of the dead, his wife and daughter Ellen, sat near the coffin. After services the procession formed and the body taken to the Unitarian church, a short distance from the house. The church was crowded, and when the body was placed in front of the pulpit Judge Hoar-wood Hoar took his place at the head of the coffin. When family and friends were seated, Judge Hoar began a beautiful address with the words "The beauty of holiness is fallen to its high place." Selections from Scriptures followed and Rev. James Freeman Clarke delivered a long and interesting address on the life and works of Emerson. Prayer and benediction closed the exercises. The people of Concord then looked upon the face of the dead and the coffin was closed and borne to the cemetery. Rev. Dr. Hoskins, Episcopal clergyman and member of the family, read the Episcopal burial service and the body was lowered into the grave. The people and clergymen then united in reciting the Lord's prayer, closing with the words "and deliver us from evil." The grandchildren passed by the open grave, each tossing upon the coffin a bouquet of flowers and the ceremonies ended. Near by his grave is that of Nathaniel Hawthorne. Among the more prominent persons present were Oliver Wendell Holmes, George William Curtis, Gen. Wm. Cooke (Emerson's biographer), Wm. T. Sargent, General Banks, Judge Hoar, Dr. Dania E. Ware, President Elliot and Profs. Peirce, Hosford, Hills and Agassiz, of Harvard; Mrs. John A. Andrews and daughter and Rev. Mr. Green of Montreal.

Funeral of Gen. Burlbut.

BELVIDERE, Ill., April 30.—The remains of Gen. Stephen A. Burlbut, late minister to Peru, were buried with appropriate ceremonies here to-day. About 10,000 people were present. Among the participants were five companies of the 36th regiment of state military, six companies of Knights Templars, a number of lodges, members of the bar of Belvidere and 300 veterans of the late war who served under him. Public and private buildings were draped in mourning. Special trains arrived on the streets. Services were in the public square. Ensemble and precautions of considerable length were rendered necessary, owing to the strong terms of the personal qualities of the dead minister, his public service as a soldier and civilian, his kindness of heart and his universal helpfulness and esteem in which he was held in life, and the shock which his death caused his neighbors and fellow-citizens. The resolutions expressed earnest sympathy with the family of the deceased, and in passing will yet arouse the shame of that country. They close with words of sympathy with the bereaved family. Prayer was delivered by Rev. Mr. Green of the Unitarian church. The remains were interred in the family cemetery. A few remarks were made by Rev. Dr. Lathrop, Reformed, who considered the body on this cemetery to the outskirts of town, where they were laid to rest with Masonic honors.

Jay Gould's Fancies.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Jay Gould's financial city this morning offers a tempting spectacle, covering ten thousand miles of ground under his control. He, presumes in his romance that the Pabank is about to pass into the hands of a receiver to be sharply, and he has practically taken it on his shoulders because he considers it a valuable property. He expresses great confidence in the ultimate success of the roads in Illinois, Missouri, Texas, Kansas and Nebraska. He says the easily rising the railroads of the west from the depression, which has severely agitated, will not put a stop to the progress of the country. Gould arrives in Missouri River in consequence of extension of the Missouri Pacific to Kansas City. The Missouri Pacific will be completed in September. It will pay, he said, one or two per cent. Four car panies, of the third cavalry at Cheyenne, two at Fort Steele and one at Fort Custer, take the field in May. Subsequent movements will be governed by rail to their destination. The companies from Fort McKinney and two companies from Fort Washakie will march to the mouth of Powder river, and so join them in a few days. The 5th infantry at Fort Snelling, Minn., and the infantry now in Texas, are to receive orders to march to the Yellowstone in June.

The Attempt to Blow Up Vanderbilt.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Postmaster Pearson has not yet to his wonder of the explosive packages to Vanderbilt and Field will be unloaded from the steamer Alaska until the glass globe of fluid was taken out of the machine intended for Vanderbilt. He sent it to Prof. Ogden Doremus, who declared the mixture explosive and violent. It consists of carbon bisulphide, saltpetre and chlorate of potash, every part of which is violently self-ignited to explode.

Meeting of the Knights of Labor Association.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—The meeting to-day to adopt a plan for the formation of co-operative, or any persons of the refrigerator, built into the bottom of it, they would, at least, have taken care to package were addressed and delivered. Mysterious looking correspondence so large as Vanderbilt's or Field's has cannot pass the possible to open many of it in letters, let alone small packages.

Death of Dr. Ely, Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 30.—Dr. Ely, general correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle, died in Rochester yesterday, aged 73. He was born in Jersey City, graduated in the Rochester University and practiced medicine in this city.

Railroads and Stocks.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Business in transit time cases was not of sufficient importance to place a quotation on the market. Sterling exchange is dull, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86 for sixty days and $4.87½ for demand. Government bonds are dull but steady. Railroad bonds are dull and heavy. Railroad stocks are dull and weak, with a general decline of ½ to 1 per cent. Transactions were confined to a few stocks, principally Lake Shore, Northwestern, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific and Ohio & Mississippi. The market closed dull and weak at the lowest prices of the day.

Suicide.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Wm. Godfrey Krueger committed suicide to-day. Poverty was the cause. He was the inventor of a flying machine which he constructed in the attic of his house. In 30 hours Krueger was a school teacher in San Francisco for two years.

A Desperate Deed.

PORTLAND, May 1.—Mrs. Peter Wells, the robber, escaped from the penitentiary this morning with two accomplices named Fitzgerald and Cook. After overpowering their attendant in the hospital, they procured a rope from a iron roof and overpowered the hospital guard. John Elder, one of the latter, died from the effects his injuries and chloroform. Fitzgerald was recaptured, but no trace has been found of the escaped men.

Death of Captain Jack.

CHICAGO, May 1.—News was received at General Sheridan's headquarters to-day that the killing of Captain Jack, the Modoc chief, by the killing of Captain Jack of the Whitebriver Utes. Jack was imprisoned there, and in attempting to escape was killed by a sentinel named Jerry. The guard fired after him and he fell at the first shot.

A Good Indian now.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Some time ago the Indian department appointed Spotted Tail, a Sioux chief of the Whitebriver Utes, who was in the vicinity of Fort Washakie, Wyoming. The arrest was made quietly enough. Spotted Tail made no attempt to escape and fled to a tepee near by, where his servants clubbed and killed Sergeant Richard Casey of the 3d cavalry. A mounted howitzer was then fired into the tepee killing Jack instantly. Capt. Jack was a notorious leader in the Thornburgh and Meeker massacres, and was a very dangerous and bad Indian.

Special dispatches say it is probable that the White River Utes will create trouble over the killing of Jack's tribe. Spotted Tail will go to Arizona. The removal of the 5th cavalry to Arizona lessens the protection of settlers in Wyoming and Colorado considerably.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 1.

Pendleton called up a number of resolutions on the application of the Associated Press and Mutual Union Telegraph Co., directing Bingham to report the bill. Pendleton said Noll was in an office over one, and was found by an American for honors, convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment, that the minister to Greece refused to act on the ground that he had no right to originate proceedings to free a convict. The minister then claimed permission to prosecute appeal under direction of the state department. The prisoner was finally landed in California, where he now is. Pendleton called attention to the serious hatred upon American citizens in countries on the east by reason of laws concerning criminal jurisdiction upon our consuls, ministers and ministers by those countries.

Edmunds suggested that imperfect trials of consular courts were preferable to subjecting American citizens to the law of native tribunals of the east.

Pendleton said he desired some provision in for prisoners were made from courts to the California judiciary. He called attention to the executive message, sent to the senate at this session, concerning outrages on American citizens in those countries. The facts it recited, he said, were enough to shock the senate.

Edmunds defended the action of Minister Bingham, and Pendleton disclaimed any disposition to reflect upon any individual, protesting that his purpose was only to secure improvement of the system.

On motion of Pendleton, the paper went to the committee on foreign relations, to which has already been referred the message from the president on the matter.

The bill to repeal discrimination against the appointment of ex-confederates in the army again came up. A division upon the pending question to refer to the committee on judiciary resulted in 21 in favor to 19 against.

House.

Bills were introduced authorizing a special commission to promote commercial intercourse with Central and South American states, also for a commission of three army engineers to determine the best route for a ship canal to connect the lakes with the Mississippi river and Atlantic with the gulf across Florida, and appropriating a quarter of a million for examination.

Townsend, of Illinois, moved to suspend the rules and pass the following joint resolution:

That the president be authorized and requested immediately to open correspondence with the government of China for the purpose of securing a change or abrogation of all stipulations in existing treaties which permit immigration to the United States except for travel, education and foreign commerce.

The house, ayes 62, noes 120, refused to second the demand for suspension.

After some talk the house, by 150 to 65, voted to suspend the rules and fix May 4th for consideration of bills extending charters of national banks.

The bill dividing Iowa into two judicial districts was agreed to.

Senate bill for the sale of lands of Miami Indians of Kansas, passed.

The bill levying a tax of 10 cents per pint bottle on all native sparkling wines except those made by fermentation was lost.

The rules were suspended and bills passed for the erection of public buildings. Among them were at Denver, Colorado, and Council Bluffs, Iowa. Adjourned.

THE NERVE OF A GYMNAST.

Acquired by Practice—William Hanlon's Description of a Fall.

Louisville Commercial.

"Gymnastics are bad medicine when taken for anything but brief and pleasant exercise," said Mr. William Hanlon, one of the famous Hanlon brothers. The talk had turned upon the life of professional athletes, and the reporter went and the opinion that gymnastics, as a business, must in time of necessity be a very dangerous. To the writer's surprise, Mr. Hanlon was quick to challenge the statement.

"I've heard it remarked," said he, "that a man must be very plucky to toss his shoe about on a high trapeze. It is not true. He may be plucky enough to do it, and may be scarred in almost any other direction. It is simply the cool nerve of gymnasts on the trapeze and the training that makes a performer appear to be braver than others. He is possibly a trained coward, while, when he gets down on the ground, does so, though he may not feel a bit like it. He acts like a piece of machinery in fact. No, a man is not brave by nature. He may be born with the nerve and he changes; say change to the recruit and he does; that is all the difference."

"What has been your plan for developing your muscles?"

"Constant work with light weights. Many make the grand mistake of using themselves with heavy weights. They put themselves under constant strain, and soon wear out. It is much better to put up a light dumbbell fifty times than a heavy one ten. Your muscles get first that much more pliable, and hence a greater development, with no strain. The most remarkable example of the evils of the heavy weight style I ever saw was in the case of John C. Heenan. I saw him right King. When he was in training for that battle he was continually at work with heavy weights, and he had got up such an enormous amount of muscle in his arms. If he could have struck King as he wanted to in the first round no one would have killed him. But King kept away from him and made him exercise his overstrained muscles; and when the real strain of the battle came upon him found he could not exercise powerfully. Heenan had been good as his heavy weights. He was never drugged as reported. The only poison he ever got was from King's fists, as Mr. Wm. Fergusson, the eminent London physician said, after an examination of Heenan subsequent to his defeat. Light and often; that's the proper thing in using weights to make muscle."

"You have had several very nasty falls. What is the sensation like?"

"I have had three of the bar falls that marked the Hanlon family. You will probably think it strange to that I further lose consciousness nor pressure of mind when I fall. My worst trouble, I think, I got in Australia, where I was playing under the management of Jim Mixon, and we made a great success. The same people in Havana go to the theater every night and had created considerable excitement. My brother Tom was taken sick suddenly. He had to was up in the dome ready for the leap for life, and the people began to clamor to have it done. I finally agreed to do it. The first consists, after the performance of a variety of tricks on the ladder, in swinging yourself into motion, and jumping from a rope, swinging from the ceiling of the house to the wings. The jump was a long one, and the house was very quiet when I began to swing preparatory to taking the leap. I threw myself at the rope, and when I was in mid-air I saw it was no go and that I was done. I struck out desperately with my feet, in the hope of holding myself forward, but I only reached the rope with the tip ends of the left hand. Both hands and both feet were extended in spread-eagle form if you please. I ought to have struck the rope with both hands, fairly in the center of my body, with the legs across the line, so as to distribute the strain of sustaining my weight over my whole body. As it was, I fell all on my left arm, and my body swept in toward the rope like a whiplash. Of course, I let go, and then I began to turn spirally like a corkscrew, and then go down. I instantly realized that I must not land all spread out. I gathered my left arm close to my body, pushed my head forward, and drew my legs close together, straddling to get into shape to fall on my side. I did fall first that way forty feet on a wooden stage. My arm was driven into my ribs, and a rib was broken. The fall was unbalanced, and I was laid up for many months. Why I was getting down in so instantly I saw over again as vivid as life, every fall that I ever witnessed. It all came upon my mind, one right after another, like successive flashes of lightning, and I seemed to be experiencing all of them in my own person. And worse than everything else, a great deal worse than the shock of arriving, was the terrible shriek of agony that went up from the audience. It was a fall for heartbreaking was that agony. I can hear it yet, and I hear it every time I think of the accident. That is the peculiarity of our family. We all hated that shriek, and none of us ever forget it. How did that accident occur? My brother Tom made a mistake in the measurement because of a muscle. In time of the rope in a round dance. The rope was two feet further away from the ladder that it ought to have been."

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Senator Blair Testifies before the Shipherd Investigating Committee.

DON CAMERON'S EXPLANATION FOR TRANSFER OF CORRESPONDENT.

Reduction of the Funds Held during April over $1,000,000—Other Congressional Matters.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Senator Blair appeared before the Pacific railroad committee to-day and began a general statement in relation to the subject-matter investigated by the committee. He read a letter touching on the Pacific railroad, from Colonel President Shipherd, but not known of any member of either house in any way whatever connected with it, excepting to vote, and no connection with it was purely as counsel, with no pecuniary interest whatever in the company and with no appreciation whatever of pecuniary results. His employment was then relinquished at about the time of the execution of grades in Peru and Chicago, and Wilcox's episodically forms and general appointment of directors, which, of course, he never knew. He had no connection and purposes of the Peruvian company.

Some time in August Shipherd wrote, saying with mixed and a relative of his in the company. Witness replied he preferred a reduction in money, if he took any. Shortly afterward he (Shipherd) sent witness $5,000 in cash. This he subsequently returned for reasons already set forth.

Witness continued: "So far as I know, the affair of Shipherd had no influence who ever upon the policy of our government and never had the effect to alter or change it in any conceivable degree." Witness then alluded to the interview with Secretary Boutwell, which took place the 13th and 26th of July, applauded: "I have no desire to go over in detail what occurred at these interviews, unless it be the wish of the committee that I should do so. I desire to state I never heard Shipherd make any mention in the presence of Blaine or on any other occasion, in my presence, of Blaine having made an offer to Minister Hurlbut of $250,000 stock in the Peruvian company, neither did I ever have any correspondence with Minister Hurlbut on the subject of the Peruvian R. R." Witness had received a letter from Hurlbut, who mentioned having received many communications from Shipherd, and saying that he would consult with him (Shipherd) understood that he (Hurlbut) could not act in the matter except on instructions from the state department. Witness never saw the books or letters of Shipherd to Walker Blaine when he saw it in the printer. report of Shipherd's examination before the committee. He had, however, been requested by Secretary Blaine to inform Shipherd that he (Blaine) did not wish him (Shipherd) to hold any correspondence with any subordinates of the state department, and this desire had been verbally conveyed to Shipherd. Witness knew nothing of the cruel industrial or labor matters of Mr. Calderon.

Witness thought government ought to consider the kidnapping of Chileron a breach of good faith on the part of Chili, and so write Blaine. He knew though American ships were on the way. Witness believed such ships would be sent, as English had already been.

Blair's examination will be continued Wednesday or Thursday.

Some of Don Cameron's Failings.

CHICAGO, April 30.—The Times' Washington special says: Senator Cameron has declined to go over to Philadelphia to attend the proposed conference with Independents. His absence is of course, taken to indicate that he is not willing to make offers of concession for non-attendance. But Simon is characteristic explanation, that shows itself in daily actions, is that Simon is so prostrated by the worry of affairs he is obliged to rest from public duties at the sunset cannon rise room until sleep has restored his nervous system, overwrought by a quarrel or anxiety that has been on his mind all day, and incidentally he repeats to a select few remarks he has made about Blaine. He of late associates little with his fellow senators and is very seldom seen in the senate cloak room. He is said to be very bitter in Pennsylvania, and added to this he has conjured evils to make himself unhappy. Married to a young wife and the father of a family of children, he is said to be unusually happy in his domestic relations. His jealousy is of the affairs of character, because absolutely without cause. There was never a more devoted woman than his wife. Her devotion, however, was the unusual theme of leaders in Washington society. Mrs. Cameron is an unlearned and absolutely honest woman. In the public affairs of her husband she has no political influence whatever. She is content to rest asleep in the arms of Morpheus, leaving all the responsibility of the Pennsylvania senatorship to her husband. Senator Cameron's domestic life is one of the most beautiful in Washington society. His children are all married and absolutely happy. Senator Cameron's son-in-law, Mr. Burnside, is a leading lawyer of Harrisburg, and his daughter Elizabeth is married to Mr. Brent, a prominent lawyer of Washington. Mrs. Brent and Miss L. Parks.

A Spring Poet.

Chicago Tribune.

"Which editor do I want to see?" asked a young man who was smoking a cigarette, and wore a hat about the size and shape of a table spoon, as he spoke to the office boy. The latter was trying to get on the right side of the German people and said:

"Well," said the budding horse reporter, sensing for an instant his labors in connection with a sketch of the life and career of Proctor, "you look as if you really ought to see the editor with the club, but probably I am mistaken. As a general friend of humanity, I must warn you to step lightly with the torch."

"Do what, sir?" inquired the young man.

"Spoil the torch—put out that dizzy little streetpiping."

"Do you mean this cigarette?" asked the visitor.

"That's it," was the reply. "You just drop that thing, go like sherry yourself round the corner. We get enough cigarette smoke from young dudes who come around here Saturdays with soc. slips from."

The young man threw away the cigarette, and wanted to know if he could write it would be proper for me as regard to a poem."

"Oh, it would be proper enough for you to—to anybody," replied the editor, "especially as there is nothing inherently unproper about a poem—except the fact of its having been written. I suppose your verses are original? The editor is waiting."

Myrtle, dear, I meet me by the creek, for on stabbing like that—something windy and sloppy, the fibre in naturally with wet weather and muddy roads."

"Do you like it?" asked the poet as he finished reading.

"Oh, it's good enough, I suppose," was the reply, "but we've got too much dairy and glen poetry on hand now. And then all that kind of verse is only a sort of literary hors mash after all. Now, if you could write a love story, or a story in which an old woman gets in front of a bunch of Bengal lights and is obliged to rest from public duties at the sunset cannon rise room until sleep has restored his nervous system, overwrought by a quarrel or anxiety that has been on his mind all day, and incidentally he repeats to a select few remarks he has made about Blaine. "Well, you can't be, I—"

"Oh, it would be proper enough," interrupted St. Janin's friend. "You seem a little doubtful about it, and of Eighteenth-street wonderly reserve. Well then, a poem to read and remain your particular pet as a lady, some Cass county Injun whose papa keeps a mill five miles from Logansport, and who has a heap of money and lives and goes to church and all that sort of thing. Is that clear enough?"

"Well, I—I think so," faltered the young man.

"Then you can't be too particular about the paper you read from. Don't have it too white, and don't have it too yellow. Don't have it too thick, and don't have it too thin. Don't have it too long, and don't have it too short. Don't have it too much like a newspaper, and don't have it too much like a book. TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 2, 1882.

THE GARFIELD EXPENSES.

The allowances made by the congressional committee for professional services upon the late President Garfield are far too high. They are exorbitant. President Garfield sacrificed his life in the service of his country as much as if he had fallen upon the battle field, and the peculiar and distressing circumstances attending his long prostration demand that generous provision be made for all who devoted themselves to him during the closing weeks of his career. At the same time there is nothing unseemly in condemning an appropriation of public money as his attendants which is out of all proportion to the value of the services rendered. Such a proceeding is too much like the rapacity of a certain class of nurses, doctors and undertakers, who take advantage of the time of mourning to plunder the family of a deceased person. It savors of quackery.

The period of Garfield's sickness was about three months. The question of professional skill does not put much figure in the case, as the result proved that the wound was mortal from the first, and the doctors were either ignorant or deceived the public when they held out hopes of his recovery. It may be admitted, however, that as had the best medical aid which was obtainable, and that his nurses were faithful and unremitting in their attentions. Even upon this theory the pay recommended by the committee is excessive. Dr. Bliss was in charge of the case, and the courtesy due to the position, the extent of his responsibility, and the more exacting demand upon his time warrant a larger compensation to him than to his associates. But a payment of $25,000 to Dr. Bliss is at the rate of $100,000 a year, or double the amount which Gen. Garfield received as president of the United States, and probably ten times as much as Dr. Bliss earns in his regular practice. The sum of $10,000 would be abundant remuneration for Dr. Bliss. D.s. Agnew and Hamilton were consulting surgeons. They are eminent men, and their time is of great value; but they did not give up their practice. They took turns in visiting their distinguished patient and kept up their business in their respective homes. Under these circumstances $5000 each would be liberal pay, and twice that sum, which is recommended by the committee, is full twice too much. Dr. Hey-ward would undoubtedly be well satisfied with the same pay. Dr. Boynton and Mrs. Edson were intimate friends of the Garfield family as well as the president's nurses; that circumstance should not deprive them of proper recompense for their time and care, but it certainly furnishes no added claim for a money consideration. Thousands of people throughout the country, perhaps equally well suited to the places they filled during the three months, would have learned to perform the same services upon condition that their expenses should be paid, and be fairly $5000 to each of the two principal nurses and friends, one of whom at least is said to be well provided with this world's goods, enough to appropriate out of the public fund. There will be less disposition to question the $5000 which it is proposed to pay to Stewart Cramp that at the $10,000, $15,000 and $20,000 items to the other attendants. The other expenses allowed seem to be right, but they are out glaringly out of proportion as those we have mentioned.

The widowed sympathy for Garfield and his family doubtless include any special gratuity to those who waited upon him, because they were fairly mean or woman in the country that such service who would not have rendered at the opportunity to be of service to the president, without any thought of compensation. The bills of the doctors and nurses, therefore, ought to be regarded simply as such, plain. They ought not to be doubled or un-trapled because they are to be paid out of the public funds, and because the sum was rendered in a case where similar services would have been eagerly volunteered without money and without price.

THE CRISIS IN OHIO.

The received opinion in Cincinnati is that the republican majority which has just advanced with the coming election between 30,000 and 40,000. The Ohio will probably go democratic by a majority of between 15,000 and 20,000, and the legislature will be democratic in both branches. In Kentucky and Indiana the democrats will probably have a majority in the legislature. In Kansas and Nebraska the democrats will therefore have a fair look to the republicans of a very close vote. Assuming the republican leader in the interior last week was right, though the state had just been redistricted so as to give the republicans three of the twenty-two congressmen, he admitted that there were at least three democrats in Ohio who have heretofore been republicans. He thought it more than probable that in the present state of feeling each of these republican officeholders would carry a district over to the democratic ranks. At least five republican votes. If his estimate is a true one, the majority of nearly 20,000, which was given for Foster over a year ago will be changed to a democratic majority of over twice that number. There are those who hope that the storm will have spent itself before the election day comes around, but the indications are that in this they will be disappointed. There are published in Cincinnati four daily German papers. Three of them have been republican in politics and one democratic. Within the last few weeks all three of these republican dailies have advised their readers to vote the democratic ticket at the next election, and state that they will give that ticket their support. In the opinion of Mr. Richard Smith, editor of the Cincinnati Gazette, which was chiefly responsible for the new bills, the republicans will gain in the country districts fully as many as they will lose in the cities and German localities. Some votes will undoubtedly be gained among temperance and religious people, and perhaps the entire support of the prohibition element can be secured. But, as the prohibitionists have never been able to get together more than 16,000 votes, it is hard to understand how they are to offset a change of three or four times that number. Besides, experience has taught that, where there is a contest at the polls between the strictly moral class and those who have license, the moral people shrink from going to the polls, while less scrupulous voters are found there early and sometimes often. Public opinion may change before October rolls around, and the republican party be saved, but if such is the case it will be through a return of the Germans to their first love rather than by a grand upspring of the better classes. But those who know the Germans know that they are obstinate and tenacious of their opinions, and that under the present circumstances the republicans have nothing to expect from them.

Ex-Speaker Colfax is disposed to think that Senator Windom will be a strong candidate for the republicans to nominate for the presidency in 1884. The Commercial Gazette, of Pittsburg, reports him as saying that he thought the senator would be unobjectionable to party leaders of all shades of opinion. The ex-speaker's friends in Indiana have not been disposed to take his decision against being a candidate for congress as final. He says, however, that he will not change his mind on the subject under any consideration.

People desire to know whether or not Guiteau is insane. There is no doubt about Mrs. [illegible]

RESPECTABLE PECULATION.

The investigation of the affairs of the Soldiers' Home at Washington has shown up a great many people in damaging light. Several weeks ago we noted the little scurvy by which household furniture bought by Mrs. Hayes personally for the president's cottage was charged to the home and paid for from its fund. Instances of purchase of vegetables, fruit, flowers, etc., for various commissioners of the home from the home fund have also been brought to light. But it appears that the same commissioners intruded on to their tastes for arts, as well as their propensities for fruit and fresh garden productions. Among the vouchers recently discovered by the senate committee are two for bronzes. One of these covers a bill for four statuettes, which are copies of the well known bronze statuette of General Scott, which stands in the grounds of the Soldiers' Home. These reproductions of this work were about two feet high and cost $25 each. They were finished in February, 1877, at an establishment in Philadelphia. When completed the president of the board of commissioners was notified in a letter, which shows that the commissioners themselves arranged for the performance of this work. One of these was returned for the decoration of the room in which the commissioners meet at the home and the remaining three went into the private possession of some of the commissioners. The voucher bears the approval of General Pitcher, the former governor of the home, and was allowed and paid upon the written order of Surgeon General Barnes, as president of the board. It would require the monthly payment of one-quarter of the entire army to the fund of the home to make good this expenditure, which was mainly for private gratification. Another voucher of a similar nature shows the payment of $800 for a marble bust of Surgeon General Barnes, which was set up in the hospital of the home. A special artist appears to have been brought to that city to execute the bust. These fine works of art, as will be seen, cost $1600. As each private soldier in the army pays twelve and one-half cents a month toward the fund for the home it required the monthly collections from 12,800 soldiers, or more than one-half the number in the entire army, to supply this craving for art on the part of the commissioners. Steps will now be taken to ascertain exactly where the three statues went which passed into private hands.

A bill has been introduced into the house of representatives providing for the repayment to Great Britain of the undistributed balance of the Geneva award. Among its whereases the bill recites that the award has been more than sufficient to meet the claims of citizens of the United States, and that "the dignity of the United States forbids it to retain the moneys of a foreign power to which it has no claim." The logic of these whereases is not good. The fact that the award was more than sufficient to pay the claims audited, exclusive of the insurance claims, does not prove that we have no right to the surplus. Before the award was made, a great deal was said about the indirect damages which the Anglo-Rebel privateers inflicted upon our commerce. If such damages are to be considered at all, the award is at most only a trifling and nominal compensation. The amount of the award could not possibly have been based upon an exact, or even an approximate calculation of the specific damages inflicted; because the amount of such damages could not be ascertained with any degree of precision. Fifteen millions were given as more as a moral thing as a pecuniary appeasement of a righteous demand. That the sum happens to be greater than the amount of claims allowed signifies nothing.

The Toronto Mail relieves the apprehensions of some Canadians that Canada is suffering severe loss in population by immigration to this country, by reference to the exodus from Nova Scotia as a sample of the immigration from the rest of Canada. It shows that while 14,837 persons left Nova Scotia for this country in a given time, about the same number returned during the same time. If this be correct it still remains to be demonstrated why so many thousands of people are leaving Nova Scotia for this country and then going back again, as such a back and forward movement of so many could hardly be instigated by pleasure or necessitated by business. The most remarkable statement, however, made by the Mail is to the effect that the stream of population leaving the United States for Canada is larger than that leaving Canada for the United States. This is too much, for no American in his senses, even if he went to Canada, would stay there long enough to be counted.

The superintendent of the Naugatuck railroad is severely censured by the Christian Advocate for running a special train on Sunday to accommodate people who wished to hear Bishop Simpson preach in Waterbury. We suppose, if the people had driven to Waterbury in their own carriages, or taken the horse-cars or an omnibus, there would have been no serious objections made. There is a tremendous moral difference in riding twenty miles on Sunday in a railroad car, and doing it inside of an hour, and riding the same distance in a private conveyance in three hours.

Republican newspapers of Ohio are announcing the candidacy of Private Dalzell for congress in the old Bingham district. It will be remembered that two years ago in his contest with Mr. Updegraff, the sitting member from that historical district, the "Private" was only beaten by a narrow margin in the convention.

The earthquake of Sunday night was general throughout Oregon and Washington. It was not felt in California.

THE POTLATCH COUNTRY.

Lewiston Teller.

The Potlatch drains nearly eleven townships of surveyed land, a part of which is timbered and a part of it out by canyons, with about one-half or three-fifths of good plough land; capable of producing from 25 to 50 bushels of wheat to the acre, and suited to all other cereals. Vegetables of every kind as well as the hardy fruits, and grass in abundance. Its natural and proper outlet to a market is via Lewiston, at present it has no good road via of the stream to Lapwai, thence down the Clearwater, the shortest and best route, although ours is in prospect of construction and is expected to be completed this summer in time to take away the coming surplus harvest. So far as we can ascertain this section now contains in the neighborhood of 300 settlers, a large proportion of whom have families and many more are en route for that section to occupy lands, most of the settlers are recent comers and yet they have made quite large improvements and seem to be intelligent and energetic, and many come with ample means to make a good start for thrifty farming. They are there and well pleased with the country, its soil, climate and other advantages and are determined to make that section bud and blossom as the rose. The three-fifths of plough land contains 132,064 acres, ready for cultivation, sufficient for over 1500 settlers, with 100 acres each of plough land. Subtract the 300 already there, and we have room for 1200 more. Were this land all occupied by settlers, and each settler sowed one-half of his ploughed land in wheat each year, or 50 acres each year, we would have 75,000 acres in wheat each year, and allowing that each acre produced 20 bushels, the minimum estimate of its capacity, we would have as the product 1,875,000 bushels annual yield, worth 50 cents per bushel when delivered at Lewiston equaling $937,500; at the present price of hauling by teams it is worth nearly 25 cents per bushel to haul it to Lewiston, leaving the farmer but 25 cents only for his grain. But suppose that a railroad were built to the Lapwai or the mouth of the Potlatch, then the farmer could readily deliver that grain at that point from his granary at the average of 10 cents per bushel, and the railroad could deliver it at Lewiston at five cents per bushel and the farmers would realize for his grain 35 cents per bushel at the granary, or $656,250, and besides $187,500 for his hauling, and the railroad company $53,750 for delivering it at Lewiston in warehouse on bank of Snake river ready for further shipment below. Whatever advance over 50 cents per bushel for wheat at Lewiston would go to the farmer. At the present prices, 50 and 60 cents per bushel, the farmer would realize 40 and 45 cents per bushel at his granary and so on as grain advance above these figures. Supposing the Potlatch country ready for settlers this and the Lewiston people will see that there would have equal benefit, and their benefits would accrue directly in the arrival of largely increased products in our city and the consequent increase of our business. Let us look in the great distance for the value of all our real estate all over every section but the Clearwater to the railroad and for any reduction would greatly enhance our every advantages. In addition to all this our population and thereby the whole section of country would rapidly swell in numbers, and in all probability would soon lead to the opening of the Indian reservation and the Indian homestead laws, and the sale of the residue of the lands not taken by the Indians.

CITY.

For Hotel Arrivals see fourth page.

REMARKABLE ACCIDENT.—About half past eight last night James Heathe, a butcher in the employ of C. M. Kohr, while working on Dr. Shindler's block on Third street between Taylor and Salmon, met the residence coming rapidly back on a run with a 50 foot ladder in front of it. He caught the ladder just as it was about to run over a horse and buggy standing in front of the market, and in doing so was carried through the door of the building and into the front room. Ernest Hoher, son of the proprietor, happened to be in the room at the time and was knocked down by the ladder, and Heathe was thrown violently to the floor. A carpenter was employed by a neighbor and dressed the wounds, which are not dangerous. Heathe is a young man about a year in this country, having arrived here only a few days ago from Colorado.

The highest style of printer's and lithographer's art will be brought into requisition, and the book will be illustrated by photographs of the most striking scenes. Several thousand copies will be issued for eastern distribution.

Crommey struck Block's wagon with a rock and Ryan plead guilty. Holt pleaded not guilty, but was found so. All but Crommey were fined $5 and costs, which they were put to to pay, and in consequence were sent to the county jail. The same case was dismissed in the police court on Tuesday of last week. This will probably teach these boys a lesson.

INJURED WHILE AT WORK.—Yesterday morning, James Johnson, a laborer at the North Pacific saw mill, was severely injured while at work. He was on the ground removing slabs as they were thrown from the upper floor, when one descending struck him on the head and rendered him senseless. Dr. G. M. Wells was called, who found Johnson's scalp badly cut and bruised. The wound bled so profusely that more than one hour was spent in stopping the said bleeding in the head. The accident will keep him from work for some time.

He had rested the breech for a moment on a chair, when it slipped from his grasp and falling, to the floor was discharged. Neither one has been able to furnish bail.

STOCK INCREASED.—The directors of the North Pacific Lumbering and Manufacturing company, who have just completed a saw mill about half a mile below Wahlberg's, yesterday filed supplementary articles of incorporation in the county clerk's office, increasing their capital stock from $50,000 to $60,000. The directors are L. Theilsen, M. Versteg, R. W. D. Inman and E. W. Quimby.

P. BELL BEATEN.—William McNeal alias William Hughes, was arrested on complaint of C. A. Bell, proprietor of a sailor boarding house on the corner of Third and E streets, who charged him with assault and battery. Hughes says there is nothing in it; that Bell just does it to persecute him. He is committed to the city jail in default of bail.

CASE CONTINUED.—C. C. Donner, who was arrested on a charge of selling whisky without a license, was arraigned in the police court yesterday. His counsel moved for a non suit on the ground that the complaint did not specify enough cause for action. The motion was not allowed, and the case continued until to-day.

THREATENING TO KILL.—William Franklin, proprietor of a saloon on the corner of First and C streets, was arrested last night on complaint of James Turk, who says Franklin threatened to kill him. Franklin denies the charge. He deposited $100 bail at the city jail for his appearance to-day.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

It was about the only topic of conversation to be heard on the streets last night. Every one had a story of interest to tell of how badly he was scared, and the accounts that were given by those who were in the front rank of the fun, as they termed it, would bring the pompadour of Hall, pushed on downside of the front door, had just as full a variety to present that one could not be pressed for choice in the experience. But the fact was no earthquake. It was the very noblest kind of a shock as compared with other representatives of the character. It didn't seem to be the genuine stuff. It was a shade, only a shade of an earthquake. Of more than one hundred and fifty men, to whom the various reporters spoke in their customary manner, only two could be found who had not felt quakes all the way from three to thirty-seven times as severe. Those two came from Kansas, where the country produces nothing but republicans, prohibition laws and grasshoppers, and nothing to be excited. The man from Valparaiso had only a quake or two for eight years, and was just as much excited over these as Mr. Tutor or Mr. Hall. The man who spent six months in Europe and glanced twice as many times as Sam at Atlanta, and left from the latter when they heard the first shock, was full on their backs and other preparations by estimated by such occasions. The man who was underway in a row in 1875 told about a quake in the shape of a tip of three weeks, and did not escape from which they had marked the number fifteen or more. The man who lived in Oakland, in 1868, laughed when he was described. It is little odds about an 8 and class quake. It wasn't quite up to it. The man who lived fifteen years in Australia said "the same" and the worst scared boy saw in other words, four persons directly in the spokes of the thunder you my Olympia." The man who had to be lifting up splinter for the past six weeks, said even the earth in Oregon was afflicted with malaria and this was the first time it had ever shaken.

The damage here was inconsiderable. No chimneys down, no plaster scared, no glassware smashed, no walls cracked, no buildings settled nor seriously shook, only scared. Dark all.

The way we reveal in this section is as the following telegrams to The OREGONIAN herewith:

At Olympia.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

OLYMPIA, May 1.—Last night at 11:40 there was a very sharp earthquake shock was 1 ft. the motion being southwest and northwest. Nothing was done here with the exception of one or two chimneys falling and many persons feeling sick at the stomach. The vibration of the first shock lasted about six seconds, and the second about eight. A slight trembling was again felt about 1 o'clock this morning. A peculiar rumbling noise continued during the first shocks like an escape of steam. Yesterday and especially last evening, was extremely sultry, and about 7 o'clock, the barometer had fallen about a quarter of an inch during the day. There is ruling at half-past 6, a cloud of black smoke arose from Mount Rainier, and since then heavy clouds have been forming around the peak. To-day the weather is warm and pleasant.

At New Tacoma.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

NEW TACOMA, May 1.—The heaviest shock from the effects of earthquake that was ever experienced by the oldest settler of this portion of Puget sound was experienced about a quarter to 11 o'clock last night. It was so great that many persons had to support themselves for fear of being thrown down. Immediately after the great trembling of the earth the earth waved as a shipsat sea, (of course not so great). Many ladies fainted from fright. No damage so far as heard.

At Salem.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

SALEM, May 1.—The earthquake shock of last night was plainly felt by various residents of this city, alarming many women and children and playing sad havoc with persons of nervous temperament. It was more perceptible on Piety hill, where crockery rattled and hanging lamps swayed to an alarming extent. No damage done.

At Astoria.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

ASTORIA, May 1.—The severest earthquake shock ever known here occurred at 10:45 last night. Motion north and south. Buildings were wrecked but none prostrated.

At Seattle.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

SEATTLE, May 1.—The shock of an earthquake was felt here at 11 o'clock last night. The vibration being from north to south. Its visible effects extended no further than the stoppage of clocks.

At Port Townsend.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

PORT TOWNSEND, May 1.—At twenty minutes to 11 o'clock a sharp shock of earthquake occurred here, lasting about twenty seconds. The vibrations seemed to be from north to south.

MINING NEWS.

[From the Times.]

John Taylor has four names on Forty-pocket and Independence lodes, substantial work.

The English company has about worked out its mines at Galena, and will soon be closed down.

Peter Hesser, of Alphabet, has struck it rich in a seam of ground adjacent with favorable prospects.

Foley Hinkle, who is employed on Hamburg rock by J. Sonne & Co., reports good prospects in that claim.

The recent rains seem to up the spirits of miners generally. Especially is this the case on Granite hill.

The others of Joseph are busily at work on their claim in the valley, the spring being quite favorable.

Green Evans of the Sweet Pine lodes are at work clearing up their openings. The quartz they are now taking out is of an ores quality.

Wm. Chaloner of No. 5, a brilliant, is at work on the hydraulic claim, having opened up a large body of gravel in a very short time. It is said to be averaging $40 a day.

Seven cattle guards are lately employed on claims whose holdings are in Grant county, Oregon, and Union county, Washington. As a consequence, but few stock are quite handy.

J. W. Hoge and his partner, J. C. Mills, have taken over the hydraulic claim being operated on Auburn creek by Mallory & Simmons. Excellent results are promised here.

Delamater & Co. have recently had a large pump for their diggings on Auburn flat. Water is coming in rapidly, and they are confident of striking the pay streak that has been some time ago.

N. DeLamater & Co's claims on Cow Flat are finishing out very well. Seven sluice boxes have been worked during the season and in addition to paying for the lease to the amount of $2000, we learn.

Some copper mines near Waldo have been bonded to Portland capitalists, who are also interested in the location of others. The prospects are favorable for a boom in that section in the near future.

W. H. Reamer, of Willow Springs, called on us one day this week and informed us that the miners there at present were still busy panning out gold, notwithstanding the late storms having furnished them plenty of water.

John Becker informs us that the interests of Forest Grove have purchased three claims, and that the company will commence cleaning up soon. Vickery & Reed are already started in gathering their dust, with favorable results.

THE RETIRING FIRM.

A. T. Stewart & Co. said to Be Doing a Brown Business but the Partners Tiring of Their Burden.

Judge Hilton Justifies the Removal up Town and Denies that the Jews or a Loss of Trade Caused the Retirement.

New York World, April 6th.

Notwithstanding the fact that for several weeks past hints have been given out in business circles that the firm of A. T. Stewart & Co. was preparing to retire from business, the actual announcement made in the World yesterday morning that such a step had been decided upon was so sudden and so unexpected that it took the majority of people by surprise and was the staple subject of comment in business circles throughout the entire city. Different opinions were expressed as to the causes which had produced the result, the prevailing notion among those assumed to be best info med being that the two principal reasons were the action taken by Judge Hilton a few years ago, in excluding Hebrews from the Grand Union hotel at Saratoga, and the large amount of competition in the dry-goods trade, which has so reduced the profits as to materially cripple the business generally.

RUMORS OF A JEWISH SYNDICATE.

Under these reports went so far as to insinuate that several rich Jews had combined and had combuded to get "even" with Judge Hilton. A rumor further intimated that the withdrawal from business of A. T. Stewart & Co. was due to a Hebrew syndicate which held so much of the firm's paper as to have the firm in its power unless the firm at once converted all of its assets into cash. All these rumors were current although notwithstanding that it was well-known that the jobbing trade of New York had greatly diminished within the past five or six years, owing to the fact that large import ng and jobbing houses have been established in Chicago, St. Louis, Baltimore, New Orleans and elsewhere, which have been made the sources whence the vast retail supplies of the great west, northwest and southwest have been drawn, thus affording the retail dealers large saving in time and money by purchasing goods nearer home at the same prices for which he had formerly been able to procure them in New York.

DENYING THAT THE JEWS HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH IT.

A World reporter yesterday found Judge Hilton in his private office in the Broadway and Ninth street store, and asked him if he was willing to make any statement in connection with the withdrawal of the firm from business and the rumors as to the cause of the withdrawal. Judge Hilton said:

"What statement can I make more than that contained in the advertisement published in the World this morning? I propose to retire from business simply because I am tired. As the World is well aware, we are doing an immense amount of business. The load is very heavy, o carry, and, as I said, I am getting tired. We have about 5000 persons in our employ, besides an immense business connection all over the world, and it is our desire to provide properly for them while we have the time. It will not do to allow such an immense business to terminate suddenly. Besides, I think I am entitled to have a little rest, and I am anxious to provide for it before it is too late. We are not retiring from business on account of any trouble with the Jews, or because we have any outstanding that we cannot pay, or because we are losing money. There has been a great deal of nonsense in the papers about the sales and our notes and our loss of business. If the Jews are satisfied with the result of the controversy with them, I certainly am; and if anybody has a note against us that we cannot pay, I should be glad to have it presented. As to business, it is a mistake to suppose that the removal of our wholesale department on the Chambers street and Broadway house to here was caused by any falling off in the volume of our trade. It was the increased demands of business that caused us to make the change, and we really have more room and larger facilities for the transaction of our wholesale trade here than we had down town."

"As you retain the name, is the inference to be drawn that you do not intend to retire wholly from business?"

"You are at liberty to draw as many inferences as they please. What will be done after the stocks of goods and mill properties are disposed of is a question which I am not at present prepared to answer."

JUDGE OF THE FIRM'S PAPER OUT.

In regard to the rumors about A. T. Stewart & Co. Mr. O. M. Bogart, of O. M. Bogart & Co., fashionable mercantile paper, at No. 1708 Broadway, said: "I do not think it is possible that A. T. Stewart & Co. had any commercial paper. We handle 90 per cent. of the dry-goods paper. And if A. T. Stewart & Co. had offered their notes to importers or others we should undoubtedly have been asked how much the paper would sell for. I have never seen a name signed by any member of the present firm, though I have seen A. T. Stewart's for $800 000 a good many years ago. As I do not believe that A. T. Stewart & Co. have had any notes out, of course I do not think it possible that anybody Jew or Gentile, could have secured paper of the firm to put it to inconvenience. If our Hebrew fellow-citizens could have harmed Judge Hilton in such a way they would not have done so."

THE JEWS NOT PUSHING THE FIRM.

A member of the firm of Hallgarten & Co., bankers, at Exchange place and Broad street, said: "We never heard of any paper put out by A. T. Stewart & Co., and our commercial clerk has never seen a specimen of it. If Bogart & Co say they never saw any of T. Stewart & Co.'s paper, then it may be not down as certain to be was none. As to the story about a combination of Jews to gather A. T. Stewart & Co.'s paper and fire it at Judge Hilton, it is chimerical nonsense. It would be impossible to collect and it would not be done if it could."

A member of the banking-house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. said: "I would not believe that A. T. Stewart & Co. have borrowed a dollar without adequate demonstration. It is impossible that any paper of the firm is outside of the firm's safe. No Jew in new York could get enough for inconvenience them and no Jew would do it for a triumph. I read something like this the other day: 'There is no healthy thought without fiber, and thought makes the labor happy.' Perhaps this is the way I have been able to climb up higher. It came to me one morning when I was making bread. I said to myself: 'Here I am compelled by an inevitable necessity to make our bread this summer. Why not consider it a pleasant occupation, and make it so by trying to see what perfect bread I can make?' It seemed like an inspiration, and the whole of life grew brighter. The very sunshine seemed floating down through my spirit into the white loaves, and now I believe that my table is furnished with better bread than ever before; and this truth, old as creation, seems just now to have become fully mine that I need not be the shrinking slave of toil, but its royal master, making labor itself the yield me its best fruits. We have been long of your work so long that maybe you will laugh at me for having lived so long without my crown; but I am too glad to have found it at all to be entirely disconcerted even by your merriment. Now, I wonder if there is not some truth in the saying, 'a feast is none of it, of which the woman suffereth complain.' The fervently educated woman thinks her duties al disgrace, and frets under them or shirks them if she can. She sees man triumphantly pursuing his vocations, and thinks it is the kind of work he does which makes him grand and regnant; we say, it is not the kind of work at all but the way in which and the spirit with which he does it.

THE RETIRING FIRM.

A. T. Stewart & Co. said to Be Doing a Heavy Business—but the Partners Tiring of Their Burden.

Judge Hilton Justifies the Removal up Town and Denies that the Jews or a Loss of Trade Caused the Removal.

New York World, April 16th:

Notwithstanding the fact that for several weeks past rumors have been given out in business circles that the firm of A. T. Stewart & Co. was preparing to retire from business, the actual announcement made in the World yesterday morning that such a step had been decided upon was so sudden and so unexpected that it took the majority of people by surprise and was the staple subject of commentation business circles throughout the entire city. Different opinions were expressed as to the causes which had produced the result, the prevailing opinion among those assumed to be best informed being that the two principal reasons were the set-back taken by Judge Hilton, a few years ago, in failing to secure Hebrews from his wife's estate, which, it is stated, has been at the bottom of the present trouble, and the large amount of competition in the dry-goods trade, which has so reduced the profits as to materially cripple the business generally.

RUMORS OF A JEWISH SYNDICATE.

Indeed these reports went so far as to intimate that several rich Jews had combined and had succeeded in getting "even" with Judge Hilton. The rumor further intimated that the withdrawal from business of A. T. Stewart & Co. was to be followed by a syndicate which had for its object the firm's paper, so as to have the firm in control unless it be first at once converted all of its assets into cash. All these rumors were made light of, notwithstanding that it was well known that the jobbing trade of New York is greatly diminished within the past few years, owing to the fact that large interior and jobbing houses have been established in Chicago, St. Louis, Baltimore, Cincinnati and other cities, which have been enabled to do a large business with the vast retail trade of the great west, northwest and southwest, thus affording the retail dealers there saving in time and money by purchasing goods nearer home at the same prices which they had formerly been able to secure in New York. Numerous failures in the dry-goods trade, however, continued to occur, and it was generally conceded that the jobbing trade of New York was steadily diminishing.

THE OREGONIAN'S CONNECTION WITH SELIGMAN AND COMPANY.

One of the firm of Seligman Brothers, the bankers, said: "Before Mr. Stewart's death I had never been a partner in foreign banking business. I have, however, we have had an occasional transaction with the firm, and know nothing about its affairs. We hold none of the firm's paper, nor do we know of any one that does. I can say at this time, before Mr. Stewart's death, when their business was one of the largest in the United States, but now it seems that it must have been, for it is long for some time. At least, I gather that from what I see in the papers. I do not understand that it is a C. Hues in any sense—simply that the present firm find that they cannot carry on the business and make money. They are wise if they do so early. But what a business it was when the present firm took hold of it! Neither have I heard that the firm have been selling foreign goods on account. If they have it was enough to make Mr. Stewart turn in his grave, that is if he has a grave to turn in."

THE RETIRING MR. STEWART MADE IN HIS WILL.

The ex-bier of the Chemical Bank said: "We do not hold any of the paper of A. T. Stewart & Co. On the contrary they have a balance on our books. Mr. Stewart requested in his will that his name should be done without prejudice to any one's interest he desired the concern to be wound up. It may be that that time has arrived and that this is simply the retirement in accordance with Mr. Stewart's wishes. No, I have heard nothing about its being the result of a sale, by the Jewish interest. I do not know or who held the firm's paper, for none of it has been presented."

AMONG THEIR COMPETITORS.

"Yes," said Mr. Lord, of the firm of Lord & Taylor, "I saw the advertisement in the World this morning, but I know nothing regarding the causes which have led them to withdraw from business. I understand that Judge Hilton says he is tired of business and wants rest. There is no doubt that it is true. I know he has no taste for the business, and I am surprised that he remained in it so long. I get precisely the same profits as A. T. Stewart & Co. do, and I do as large a business as they do. It is impossible, therefore, that the firm's business at Broadway and Tenth street has greatly benefited merchants in that locality."

One of the partners in another well known dry goods house said: "I was not surprised at the announcement. Every business man in New York who keeps his eyes open has known for some time that the firm has been steadily going down hill ever since Mr. Stewart's death, and I am not surprised to learn that it has finally reached the bottom. Of course the house lost some of its retail business through Judge Hilton's controversy with the Jews, but I do not think it affected its wholesale trade in the least. Several reputable and wealthy Jewish families closed up their retail trade there and transferred it here, and, as men of business, we welcome them. I do not believe there has been any decline in the jobbing trade of new York. We do one-third more business in a wholesale line now than we did a few years ago. In my opinion the house has outlived its usefulness."

REMARKS ABOUT A SUBSIDIZED PRESS.

"I have written fashion articles for quantities of papers for years," said a well-known lady, "and I think I know why all the woolen mills of A. T. Stewart & Co. have been obliged to close. About four years ago a certain fashion paper was subsidized to the extent of $10,000, and the editor immediately commenced to write up buntings. It was bunting, bits and seaside bunting that until all the girls went bunting-mad. The price was then 60 cents per yard. A. T. Stewart & Co. advertised delaines, woolens and worsteds, but the fashion articles declared bunting to be the style. People who owned woolen mills were obliged to alter their machinery to meet the wants of the trade, and one owner spent $50,000. The price dropped to 40 cents and then to 30 cents. When it reached the latter figure General Butler, who is connected with the largest bunting mills in the country, at once flooded the market, and for three years everything but woolens was worn at the seaside. Even England caught the infection, and I believe that several woolen mills in that country failed in consequence. I consider that the closing of the firm was due in a great measure to the fact that no lady wore any material for a dress that was made wholly or partly of wool. Of course the firm did not know that the paper referred to was subsidized. Several other papers followed in its lead, and the western and southern merchants brought accordingly. I know whereof I speak.'

A PLAN CHECKED BY MR. STEWART'S DEATH.

Shortly before his death Mr. A. T. Stewart was in negotiation with Mrs. Paran Stevens for the purchase of her property at the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-eighth street, his purpose being to erect thereon a large branch store. He believed that this step was necessary to retain the rich trade of his wealthier customers.

MRS. GARFIELD ON WOMAN'S DUTIES.

The late number of the Student, a little paper published by the students of Hiram college, quotes an extract from a letter written by Mrs. Garfield to her husband over ten years ago, and intended for no eyes but his. It fell into the hands of President Hinsdale, who made use of it in a lecture to the students, and as it showed the qualities of Mrs. Garfield's mind, and her opinions upon the subject of woman's work, he gave it to the students. The extract is as follows:

I am glad to tell that out of all the toil and disappointments of the summer just ended, I have risen up to a victory; that silence of thought since you have been away, has won for my spirit a triumph. I used something like this the other day: "There is no beating thought without labor, and thought makes the labor happy." Perhaps this is the way I have been able to climb up higher. It came to me one morning when I was making bread. I said to myself, "Here I am compelled by an inevitable necessity to make our bread this summer. Why not consider it a pleasant occupation, and make it so by trying to see what perfect bread I can make?" It seemed like an inspiration, and the whole of life grew brighter. The very sunshine seemed flowing down through my spirit into the white loaves, and never before was I so grateful for having lived as to better bread than ever before; and this truth, old as creation, seems just now to have become fully mine that I need not be the shrinking slave of toil, but its regal master, making whatever I do yield me its best fruits. You have been king of your work so long that now you will let me call me queen for having lived so long without my crown, but I am too glad to have found it at all to be entirely disconcerted even by your merriment. Now, I wonder if there does not lie the "terrible wrong," or at least some of it, of which the woman suffragists complain. The wrongly-educated woman thinks her duties a disgrace, and frets under them or shirks them if she can. She sees man triumphantly pursuing his vocations, and thinks it is the kind of work so does which makes him grand and regnant; whereas, it is not the kind of work at all, but the way in which and the spirit with which he does it.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Eastern Freights Markets.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Although the freight market has been very quiet during the past month the number of departures has been larger than for a long time. Quite lately, however, the number of departures of vessels from this port, one from Baltimore, the movement the past month amounted to nine vessels, of which five were from this port, one from Boston and three from Orleans, registering in the aggregate 12,772 tons, against five vessels of 8,146 tons in the corresponding month last year. The total movement thus for this year foots up 59 vessels registering 39,859 tons against 21 vessels of 21,146 tons in the corresponding four months last year, an increase in number of vessels but decrease in amount of tonnage. Tonnage both here and engaged for this trade foots up 13 vessels registering in the aggregate 25,600, upwards of two-thirds of which is held for this port. Of this number there will be two vessels with general cargoes gotten off during the present month.

It has become an occasion to write the beginning of an elegant, interesting article and then run it into some advertisement that we avoid at such cases and smartly advertise to the merits of Hop Bitters in such a honest manner as possible, to induce people to give them one trial, as no one who knows their value will ever be anything sick.—Providence Advertiser.
